WOODSTOCK FIRE CHIEF RETIRES AFTER 24 YEARS

After serving the past 24 years as Fire Chief and Forest Fire Warden of the Woodstock Fire Department, Harold S. Tyler has announced his retirement.

Joining in the formation and organization of the present department in 1940, he was elected Assistant Fire Chief for the first year of operations and elected chief in 1941, holding that position until his retirement. The first year or two they had a portable pump that was kept in Tyler's garage and loaded onto a truck for fire protection in the town. The first pump was a 1926 Reo, which Chief Tyler completely rebuilt in his spare time in 1948. Since then a new firehouse was built and at present there are four trucks.

Also housed in the fire station is an old hand-lub, complete with attached leather fire buckets and a large bell on top that was purchased in the 1800s by the town. This is now used for exhibition purposes and has been entered in several shows, winning prizes. Mr. Tyler has operated a garage in town for the past 46 years and plans to retire from his work in early summer.

S. A. D. #4 DIRECTORS MET AT ANDOVER MONDAY EVENING

Annual District Budget Meeting Postponed Again

The M. S. A. D. #44 board of directors met at the Andover Elementary School on Monday evening of this week for a regular meeting.

Ronald Wells, a citizen of Andover, spoke of relations between the faculty and administration at Telstar Regional High School and concern over its operation. By a five to three tally the board voted to hold an informal meeting with the Telstar teachers without the administrators present. Following an executive session, late in the session, this vote was reconsidered, and the decision was to invite Telstar faculty members to a special board session to discuss any problems.

Paul Farrar, Cathy Fiske and Jean Manson, Telstar seniors, spoke with regard to cuts in staff and teacher reassignment thought necessary by the board because of budget considerations in the 1976 fiscal year.

Mrs. Frances Gunther, English Department chairman at Telstar, noted she would be losing two promising young instructors from her department because of teacher cuts and inverse seniority provisions.

Supt. Basil Kinney informed the board that insurance bid openings will be held at his office on Tuesday, June 10, at 10 a. m.

The board voted to inform the Telstar Education Association that it will be unable to meet any requirements to make "lump sum" payment of "summer pay" that may be requested by the district's certified personnel before June 30, 1975, but that the board will meet such requests promptly after July 1, 1975.

The directors voted to rescind the action taken March 4 on the Warrant for District Budget meeting, selecting the date as April 17, 1975 and rescinding approval of all articles for district meeting.

The board further authorized the superintendent to prepare a new warrant for board action at their next regular meeting on April 21, to contain proper articles for implementation of the current proposed fiscal year 1976 budget. The warrant in its entirety is to be based on current provisions of LD 1994.

The warrant to be proposed for board action on April 21, would permit a district meeting to be held prior to the end of April. There is currently legislation pending before the legislature that would negate this warrant. In the event the legislation is enacted it provides an additional 30 days for approval of a FY76 budget.

The board approved the issuance of annual salary agreements to the following certified personnel currently on continuing contract: Rodney Abbott, John Applin, Pauline Applin, Lawrence Arsenault, Suzanne Bane, Timothy Barker, Suzanne Bartlett, Francis Bean, Helen Berry, Mary Billings, Lois Burgess, Nicholas Clements, Sandra Colby, Richard Collins, Phyllis Cross, Margaret Davis, Theodore Davis, Thelma Dombkowski, Norman Emery, Nancy Fox, Mary Jane Gaudreau, Madeline Gibbs, Michael Gilbert, Caroline Gould, Rupert Grover, Frances Gunther, Paul Halle, Daniel Hannon, Ellen Haverinen, Ann Holt, Virginia Kelly, Floyd Keniston, Mabel Kenett, Timothy Kersey, Timothy LaVallee, Richard McCann, Victoria Meisner, William Merrill, Joyce Morgan, William Morton, Mary Newcomb, Ralph Niemi, Felix Otero-Otero, Joan Parker, Richard Prescott, Paul Raymond, Richard Roy, Carol Stuart, Charles Stroul, Audrey Taylor, Charles Taylor, Natalie Timberlake, Marilyn Thayer, Linda Torrey, William

COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

There are appointments to be made for both Planning Board and Budget Committee members. Anyone interested should contact the Town Office. Please do so in writing.

As of Wednesday there have been seven individuals who have submitted their names as being interested in the School Director opening. The Selectmen will review the list next Monday night at their regular meeting.

There has been no further developments on the suit against the town. A meeting is planned between both parties and their attorneys to discuss the subject. It is hoped at least some of the issues may be settled without court action.

Over $16,000 worth of Food Stamps were issued by the Town Office during March. Each month there is an increase in the volume dispensed. Up to the 9th of April $10,815.00 worth were issued for this month. Many recipients have two issuances a month. Therefore after the middle of each month we can expect an increase in volume over the days just preceding it.

PRE-SCHOOL REGISTRATION LAST WEEK IN APRIL

During the last week of April pre-school registration will be held throughout S. A. D. #44. An important part of the pre-school registration process is the testing for school readiness. This is accomplished by observation of the child and administration of a school readiness test.

The four major areas of testing are:

1. Social-emotional behavior: observed by the examiner while the child performs the test.
2. School readiness tasks: determined by questioning the child and observing various responses.
3. Motor performance: the child performs various simple coordination exercises.
4. Family and medical history: a questionnaire completed by the parents.

A study of completed tests and forms gives a good overall picture of the school enterer and that child's chances for success in the initial school year. Parents are informed of the results of the testing by letter come time after registration week.

Mrs. Collette Morgan, Corres.

Today shows by the calendar, that it is April third but it could well be February. How the snow comes down! Weather changes quickly along this northeastern stretch; sunshine to overcast, blue sky to rain, hail, sleet, snow, warm to cold. But at this time of year we can take new storms and returning snow, like today, with an easier heart; they will soon be gone.

Just yesterday I saw a chipmunk, his tail stiff as though it were frozen. He scurried from one stone to another. I hope today he is back in his home lined with thistle down, milkweed floes or other comfort material.

And yesterday I walked down the road to the pussy willow swamp. The crust held so I went among the alders and willows. Here and there as I looked they stood out against the blue bowl above. I gathered a few, those that I could reach easily, then explored a little.

Several days back Ruth and I took our first hike together since last fall; a gorgeous morning and a crust.

After a short drive we left the car to take an old road then branched off near a brook into the forest. There is nothing like following flowing water to put one into a peaceful mind. Great rocks towered from the hill side, incon-ceivably old and gray. A fragrance of evergreens and the brook with its water bubbled beneath crystal bridges and miniature icicles. Fixed here in the earth part of the established landscape, subject to the will of the season; it also shares with the creatures who keep its shores. A brook or river has its own frontiers, its own laws, and its own mysteries. One part may be loud with its rapids, while another is as still as the cave.

As we travelled between hills or on level ground we realized that the forest has its own mystery, too. It is in winter that it comes into its own. On one path the snow had fallen with all the fury of a storm; on another it had sifted through branches gentle and noiseless like dust.

It was very still; a bird's call would have been a small adventure in its loneliness.

The tones of shadows were both tender and delicate; reminding one of the certain blues in flowers.

The trail was easy and we finally came to a place where it was steeper, so "two sooties" decided to turn back.

The language of the brook was no less enchanting; exulting currents, swash and gurgle over and against rocks and the smooth, downy hush of the shallow places, feeling their way through alders with trembling gestures as if afraid of being carried away.

As we again arrived at the road

On the Job With Emily

Thursday was a heavy day in Augusta last week, with the House in session for over five hours, during which time a move to raise the drinking age to 20 was indefinitely postponed and returned to the Senate, and the bill providing a formula for the sharing of costs between the state and private landowners for control of the Spruce Budworm was passed. Earlier in the week the "Truck Weight" bill went down to defeat, despite very heavy lobbying up to the last minute. Apparently many legislators, including Rep. Saunders, felt that the voters of Maine had spoken on the issue last November in defeating the referendum on increasing truck weights.

One day last week, Maine muscels were served at the State House, in a promotional effort by the Dept. of Marine Resources. They were steamed in wine, onions and oil, and were pronounced "delicious" by Emily. She had a very interesting meeting with Edward Sprague on the subject of public lots, and the possibilities of swapping lots owned by the state with paper company lands, in order to increase opportunities for public use of the lands.

The Committee on Education has spent much time this session on the subject of school financing; the code words being LD 1994 and LD 526. The basic goal of LD 1994, passed in the 106th Legislature, was to equalize the dollars behind every school student in Maine. This was done by increasing the state share of education costs to 50%, taken from income, sales tax, and general revenue, and imposing a uniform state property tax of 14 mills, to be redistributed to the towns according to the number of pupils in each town, to account for the other 50%.

While many towns and cities in the state benefitted from the increase in state aid, and the property tax relief, other areas found that they had to pay more to the state under the uniform property tax than they got back in school funds. In the unique situation of Cape Elizabeth, the law prevented the

THAT'S LIFE

A bit of laughter, a bit of tears, A little hope and sometimes fears, That's life.

Spirits up and spirits down
Maybe a smile, maybe a frown.
That's life.

We may have faith, we may have doubt,
But love we cannot do without.
That's life.

Hasty words we wish unsaid
Often in strange paths we're led.
That's life.

A life begun, a life that's ending
Thoughts that toward our home are wending.
That's life.

Friends that love and foes that hate,
Duty calls early and late.
That's life.

Sometimes friends meet, sometimes they part
Then it almost breaks our heart.
That's life.

Memories good and memories bad
Some things we have, some wish we had.
That's life.

So much of joy, so much of pain,
We take the sunshine with the rain.
That's life.

A soul to save, a Heaven to win
Here and now we must begin.
That's life.

"...I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." John 10:10.

STATE SEN. JACKSON NAMED TO REGIONAL CONFERENCE TAXATION COMMITTEE

State Senator Joseph Sewall, president of the Maine State Senate, has announced his appointment of Senator Phillip Jackson of Harrison to the Eastern Regional Conference of the Council of State Governments.

The purpose of this Committee is to discuss the problems of taxation that exists among the various states along the east coast and exchange ideas on how to handle the problems.

Senator Jackson said, "It is not only one state that is realizing a tightening of their state budgets because of a lack of necessary revenues, but most states throughout the country. Hopefully by attending the meetings of this committee, I will be able to learn of some of the ways in which other states have handled these very serious problems, and use those solutions to help the situation here in Maine."

INSULATED WOOD FRAME HOUSES SAVE UP TO 30% IN HEATING COSTS

A new report issued by the National Forest Products Association, according to Maine Forest Service officials, indicates that by selecting an insulated wood frame house, homeowners can save as much as 30% in heating and air conditioning costs. The report, "Energy Conservation Study, a Performance Comparison of a Wood Frame and a Masonry Structure," is a summary of results of two separate comparative energy consumption tests conducted on identically sized wood frame and masonry homes. The tests, held in the warm climate of Tempe, Arizona, utilized identical heating and cooling equipment under strictly controlled conditions in both structures. Results revealed average yearly energy savings for the wood frame structure of 23%, with savings in summer months of 30%.

An earlier test study, in Beltsville, Md., where the heating season is more critical, showed energy savings for the wood frame structure of 26% for heating and 18% for air conditioning.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I can't help but respond to the letter you printed last week about one person's objections to my letter. "What ever happened to our children's report cards?" I would like to make a few things clear to this parent who has a few of her facts misconstrued.

First of all I'd like to clear up her idea that us parents that I referred to can afford to obtain baby sitters and gas for our pleasure whenever we feel like it. The truth is that we very seldom go out these days and we all agree that pleasure trips and outings are few and far between! The cost of sitters and gas make going out often, a luxury many of us just can't afford.

I want her to know this does not mean that we do not go to school when the children have things to put on for the parents. We go to all the family things such as scouting activities etc. with our children. You see we do care, we don't mind going to school at all but we do get much out of these conferences that are hurried and uninformative.

I think the thing that made us interested parents the most upset when we read her sarcastic letter was that we merely wanted to get rid of our children by sending them to school each day. How wash to her! Maybe that's how she feels but we care enough to want grades. It is because we care that we are concerned! Our children agree with us parents on this matter. Another of her twisted ideas is that we don't even look at their papers. I would like to inform her that we do go over our children's papers very thoroughly and they often correct some of their errors. They are proud of their grades on these papers and would be even prouder of a report card a few times a year. Can this parent truly say her child tries harder in school now that there are no grades to worry about? Boy, I'd hate to think how the older kids in high school would "goof off" if they didn't have the incentive of being graded each nine weeks!

We all have to spend our money wisely these days and we can't see the extra expense of going to all these meetings and still come away not knowing how Tom, Dick or Harry is doing grade wise. I really don't understand why it upsets this individual so much because some of us would like report cards again. After all this is still a free country and I don't believe the schools should have taken it upon themselves to make that decision. I wonder just what comments they would get back if they sent home a paper asking if we would like the report cards back again! I think some of the silent aggravated parents might let their feelings be known. I believe there would be less problems with the children today if the schools were run more like they used to be. There were rules for work and study and you obeyed them, you didn't just work along as fast or as slow as you pleased.

What I have to say about the idea of hers that she found out about her child having a difficult time by attending a conference and solved the problem for the child by discussing it with the teacher. Well, if this woman will think back to those old "rank cards" the child's teacher would have written down the problem and of course requested a conference with her. You see just because we had the report card system for so many years we weren't exactly in the dark ages were we?

I was just talking to a neighbor child who told me that he did not want report cards back. I asked him why? He replied, "Cause I do bad in school." Can I make my point any clearer? If grades are not important than why do high schools and colleges use them still?

In conclusion I would like to add that it would be a funny world if we all agreed. I just did not like the sarcasm that this parent put into his or her letter. I hope some of you agree with me. I am very glad the parent was interested enough to read my letter three times. There must have been some truth in it or they wouldn't have wasted their valuable time. Thank you all who read it and agree or disagree!

Thank you, Editor, for printing this and thank you who care enough to read this once!

MRS. AUDREY TAYLOR, Art Teacher, is teaching a lesson to them how to make fish kites out of tissue paper.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR GOES 'COMPACT'

The Christian Science Monitor has changed its style but not its commitment. The well-known daily newspaper has gone "compact." The new format has twice the number of pages of the old broadsheet, but the new pages are half the former size.

Along with the small-size daily, a new, compact, weekly international edition, prepared in Boston and printed in London, is being introduced. The international edition will be a composite of news and features from the daily editions, plus new material prepared especially for overseas readers.

What never changes at the Monitor, however, is its commitment to journalistic excellence.

As Edwin D. Canham, a native of Auburn, Maine, and the Monitor's editor emeritus points out: "News media behavior will have more than a little to do with public credibility toward the media in the crucial years ahead. If we are worthy of the public trust, we will receive it. And we will be making our contribution to the restoration of our faith in our vital national institutions and in the integrity of our fellow man."

Mary Baker Eddy, founder of the Church of Christ, Scientist, established the Monitor in 1908 to counteract the indiscriminate muckraking, sensational and yellow journalism which dominated the American press at the time.

The Monitor aims to promote the highest sense of morality and ethics—indicative of the Christian convictions of the church it represents. From its inception the paper's objective was "to injure no man, but to bless all mankind."

But only one brief article daily does this with any specific reference to Christian Science. The rest is straight news and feature coverage of the highest caliber.

While the Monitor seeks to report whatever is constructive in society, Mrs. Eddy did not commit the paper to reporting only pleasant news. Her whole life was dedicated to solving human problems through spiritual insight (and good, common sense).

The Monitor reports grim facts as grim facts and solutions are sought wherever possible. For example, in a series on abused and neglected children, shocking practices were reported. Corrective action was documented, and standards were set for eliminating child abuse altogether.

The United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare is now using the series in talks, seminars, and training programs. And social agencies across the country, as well as Maine's Legislative Committee on Human Resources, have requested reprints of the articles.

The Monitor's approach to reporting the news is put this way by editor John Hughes: "When we expose the misuse of public funds, we have struck a blow for principle. When we pinpoint the inefficiency of certain judges in our courts, we have struck a blow for law and order. When we report the ill-treatment of children in state institutions, we have struck a blow for love. When we expose the methods of the narcotics traffickers, we have struck a blow for health. When we reveal the conditions in aging, decrepit prisons, we have struck a blow for compassion."

Since 1950, the Monitor has won four Pulitzer Prizes—for correspondence from the Soviet Union and Indonesia; and for investigative analyses of conditions in the American court system and in the national park system.

Its writers have been honored frequently by the national professional journalism society, Sigma Delta Chi; by the Overseas Press Club of New York; by Columbia University and the University of Missouri; by the associations of the science writers and education writers; and by the American Bar Association. It has frequently been judged one of the top 10 newspapers in the United States and one survey called it "the most fair" in the nation.

THE GREAT MOTOR PHYSICS CONTEST

This past Thursday, Mrs. Thayer, Mr. Arsenault, and Mr. Flynn were asked to act as judges in the "annual physics handmade motor contest" at Telstar Regional High School. All physics students were asked to make simple motors and these motors would be judged in four categories: fastest, craftsmanship, uniqueness, and the "lemon". The Art Department, under the direction of Mrs. Thayer, created medallions to be worn around the neck. The winners are: Doug Brooks and Cathy Fiske (craftsmanship); Donna Brooks and Marjorie Berry (fastest); Wilfred Gibson (uniqueness); and Levi Brown ("lemon"). Take physics — it helps make your day a bit happier!

Monitor stories are also syndicated to some 191 other newspapers—142 within the United States, 49 outside—through the Christian Science Monitor News Service.

Story hour continues to be popular for the pre-school children, held Thursday morning all year 'round. Mrs. Jean McGuire, who has been "Story Lady" for the past four years has retired. South Woodstock

— Olive Davis, Corres. —

A heavy snow storm hit our area Thursday and Friday. We have more snow in our yard than we have had all winter. If we could get a warm sun I'm sure we'd have a brook tearing down the hill lacking the fish. I still have shoveling to do as it isn't all broken out. I hope this is the last bad storm.

The birds have been busy trying to keep the breath of life in them. The juncos arrived just before the storm so are having a hard time. I filled the bird feeders before hand which was lucky because I can't get out the back door at present. I had to open the window on the porch to shovel out the front door before I could open it. We have a road out anyway.

Those coming from the south found it hard going without snow tread.

We are sorry to hear of the death of Jennie Cox. Our sympathy goes out to the family. The services were held at Andrews funeral home Thursday afternoon.

BETHEL HEADSTART

Well, I guess you could say Mother Nature sure did play an April fools joke on us! Are you laughing?

After a short week last week we started this week with lots of activities. We were all surprised to see some of our seeds sprouting. At long last our thumbs were showing a green tinge. Even our branch that we put in water was budding.

Monday evening we had a parent meeting. There was going to be a penny auction, but because of the small turn-out, it was postponed. We did decide to ask area merchants if we could deposit boxes in their stores for collecting Dr. Pepper bottle caps. These can be turned in for money to benefit organizations such as ours. So if you're a Dr. Pepper drinker—don't throw those caps away! We are also taking donations on a set of coming ware, a juice set and a pot-tered plant. See a Head Start parent!

Lorrie Howard celebrated her fifth birthday on Tuesday. Even a trip to Dr. Riese's for fillings didn't dampen her day!

On Wednesday we journeyed to Sunday River Skiway where a very enjoyable morning was had by all. Many thanks to the skiway crew!

Our star for last week was Kathy Tyler. Kathy lives in Gilead. Her mother's name is Mary, her father's name is Wendall. Kathy's favorites are toy, crissy doll; color, red; food, bologna; TV show, Lucy; and her pets, gerbils, Toco, Tiger.

Donations have been: baby food jars, Mary Tyler and Ann Bishop poster paper, Mr. Johnston, principal of Woodstock School.

Volunteers have been: Robin Fiske, Debbie Garey, Gemma Morrill and Damion, Linda Haegle.

We want to see a "Sea Monkey!" We have a real live one—come on into the center and see for yourself.

CARD OF THANKS

Many thanks to all my friends and relatives for the cards and visits during my hospitalization and since I have returned home. A special thanks to the WWI Baracks and Auxiliary for their thoughtfulness.

Albert Skillings

We will meet and make plans, possibly broaden the program to some action stories, take part in the Old Home Days parade as book characters or what other ideas you may have.

Health needs of the area will be the topic of discussion at public meetings to be held on Tuesday, April 15, at Oxford Hills High School, Norway, and on Wednesday, April 23, at Rumford Junior High School, Rumford. Both meetings will begin at 7 p. m.

These meetings are being planned by area residents who serve on the Board of Directors of the Tri County Health Planning Agency.

The issues to be raised at these meetings have been under study for the past several months by 10 task forces which include: acute care; ambulatory and home health; dental health; emergency medical services; maternal and child health; mental health; nutrition; problems of the aging; rehabilitation; and vision, speech and hearing.

Invitations were mailed this week to members of the medical community and others interested in health. However, an open invitation is extended to anyone who wishes to express views on local health needs and what should be done to meet them.

EASTER SEAL CAMPAIGN A SUCCESS

Bethel area residents are being commended for their part in the successful Easter Seal Campaign just completed here. The public "thank you" was extended by Mrs. Owen Stevens of South Berwick, president of the Pine Tree Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Maine's Easter Seal Society.

In expressing the Pine Tree Society's appreciation, Mrs. Stevens pointed out that many more handicapped people will receive needed therapy during the coming year, because Maine's people continue to care.

One of the major factors in the success of the campaign was the enthusiasm and dedication of the Easter Seal Volunteers. The Pine Tree Society gave special mention to Mrs. David Hanscom who directed the campaign locally and the many volunteers who worked on the important house-to-house phase of the 1975 Easter Seal Appeal, especially the Methodist Youth Fellowship for their considerable amount of work and the excellent job which they did.
